18. The DV Unit does not engage in sentencing negotiation in felonies, other than to indicate whether the defendant should be sentenced to county jail or state prison and, if the latter, for what maximum potential term. In misdemeanors, only the court engages in discussion of jail time. In any case, whether felony or misdemeanor, in which the defendant is convicted without a sentence limitation by the judge, the prosecution will argue for the aggravated sentence whenever the circumstances warrant such a position. In any case where the court has placed a sentence limitation, the prosecution will argue for the maximum sentence allowed under the sentence limitation, assuming the circumstances of the case warrant such punishment. In virtually all domestic violence cases where the defendant is placed on probation, a significant period of incarceration is sought and imposed, as well as the statutory mandated counseling and other conditions.

Both misdemeanors and felonies are prosecuted vertically. Felonies are unit verticality until the the cases reaches Superior Court, at which point they are handled with "true verticality", unless the case count for that prosecutor becomes excessively high. In those instances, a "backup" felony prosecutor with extensive DV experience is assigned to handle the case. Misdemeanors handled in the two branches are handled vertically at all major stages of prosecution.

5. The SAPP grant requires that "All reasonable prosecutorial efforts shall be made to reduce the time between arrest and disposition of charge against an individual meeting spousal abuser criteria". Describe your SAPP program's success in obtaining a reduction of time between arrest and disposition of domestic violence cases.

All post-arrest filings occur within two days of arrest. Almost all non-arrest filings occur within 12 - 30 days of receipt of the police report. At arraignment, pretrial disposition dates are set within 2 - 3 weeks, and jury trials are set 30 - 60 days from arraignment (misdemeanors) and felonies are set for pre-trial and jury trial date usually within 30 - 90 days of arraignment. Continuances are routinely opposed unless necessary to effectuate disposition or present evidence needed to obtain a conviction.

The SAPP grant requires that "All reasonable prosecutorial efforts shall be made to resist the pretrial release of a 👘 charged defendant meeting spousal abuser selection criteria". Describe your SAPP program's efforts to prevent pretrail release of domestic violence defendants.

Our DV Unit routinely asks that bail be set in all DV cases, both misdemeanor and felony. We ask that bail be set according to the bail schedule, unless there are aggravating circumstances which warrant higher bail. We routinely oppose defense bail reduction and OR requests, and we request a hearing pursuant to PC 1270.1 when appropriate. The Unit asks for PC 136.2 protective orders at arraignment.

The SAPP grant requires "All reasonable prosecutorial efforts shall be made to persuade the court to impose the most severe authorized sentence upon a person convicted after prosecution as a spousal abuser". Describe the SAPP program's efforts to ensure that the most severe sentence is issued.

Please see Addendum.

Describe the SAPP programs policy concerning plea bargaining of domestic violence cases.

In misdemeanor DV cases, where alternative counts are charged, we seek to obtain a guilty or no contest plea to the appropriate charge which reflects domestic violence conduct. Where proof problems may compormise the outcome of the case, we may offer a lesser charge (i.e., PC 242). In felonies, absent significant proof problems the defendant will always be required to plead guilty or no contest to one or more felony counts reflecting domestic violence conduct, admit any DV prior convictions. In the most serious (non-homicide) cases, the defendant will be required to plead guilty to the most serious felony charge (i.e., 664/187, 207, etc.).

(Rev. 6/01)

The main objectives of the program are to vertically prosecute both felony and misdemeanor domestic cases, and provide victims of domestic violence with information, referrals, counseling, assistance and court accompaniment. Both Domestic Violence Counselors are bi-lingual and meet or exceed the requirements of the Evidence Code section 1037.1. The program budget covers ninety-two percent (92%) of the salaries of the DV Counselors. The budget has been developed to ensure that the unit has all available county resources at their disposal and provides adequate funding for case management. No administrative program management or clerical costs have been included in this budget so that all available funds can be directed to advocate and prosecutorial efforts. No subcontracts or other unusual expenditures are anticipated at this time.

In 1997, the court, in collaboration with the District Attorney and the Probation Department, established the post-conviction DV Review Court. In this court, the same two judicial officers who handle all misdemeanor DV cases at the pre-trial disposition and sentencing stages, now supervise the return of the convicted batterers to court postsentencing. These defendants appear numerous times throughout the first 18 months of their three-year probationary period, to show proof to the judge of enrollment and successful participation and completion of the batterers' treatment program. The court also receives reports from the supervising probation officer, who keeps the court apprised of the defendant's performance on probation. This enables the court to exact immediate consequences, both positive and negative, on DV probationers. Probation violations and remands into custody can and do occur, both in response to any subsequent violence or other violations of probation conditions. In addition to achieving immediate accountability for those who fail on probation, other DV probationers present in the courtroom can observe what the consequences will be for such failures and thus, hopefully, receive the appropriate "deterrent message". Conversely, those who are performing well, complying with probation conditions, remaining violence-free, and participating meaningfully in the batterers' treatment program are praised and encouraged by the very judge who sentenced them, and required to make fewer return appearances to court.

In January 2000, in further recognition of the volume, complexity and importance of the DV Unit caseload, an additional attorney was added to the Unit to assist in both filing of cases and conducting preliminary hearings. The Unit is now staffed by 3.5 attorneys dedicated to vertical prosecution of misdemeanor and felony DV cases, two full-time victim advocates, both of whom are bilingual in Spanish, all of whom are under the supervision of a Supervising DDA, who also assists in filing and reviewing cases and in staffing the DV Review Court.

Need For The Project

The DV Unit has become an integral part of the effort to reduce and, hopefully, eliminate violence between current and former partners. With over 1,400 DV cases submitted to the District Attorney each year by the various law enforcement agencies in San Mateo County, it is imperative that these cases are carefully assessed, aggressively prosecuted, and the necessary steps taken to attempt to protect the victim and change the abusive behavior. A traditional prosecutorial model simply does not address the complex nature of these cases, particularly the issues of the victims involved. Providing advocacy for the victims and their children, which includes counseling, referrals, court accompaniment and, most importantly, information and support, is essential to a successful outcome. Of equal importance is the follow-through which the DV Unit, in conjunction with DV Review Court, is able to achieve. Prosecuting and convicting a batterer is only the first step toward reaching the goals and objectives below.

PROGRAM NARRATIVE FOR SAPP GRANT RENEWAL FY 2002 - 03

Background

The San Mateo County District Attorney established the Domestic Violence Unit (hereinafter referred to as the "Unit") May 3, 1994, in order to implement the aggressive prosecution of domestic violence (hereinafter referred to as "DV"). The Unit was established after a seven month evaluation of the nature and volume of the domestic violence caseload within the office, based on statistics and the uniform review of all domestic violence police reports submitted by all police agencies within the county by a supervising prosecutor with extensive experience.

Initially, the Unit consisted of two full-time experienced prosecutors, whose duties were devoted exclusively to domestic violence cases, under the supervision of the supervising attorney described above. These two prosecutors handled all misdemeanor DV cases vertically, and handled all felony DV cases for preliminary hearing. The initial intent was to concentrate the vertical prosecutorial resources on DV misdemeanors, since the bulk of the cases filed were misdemeanors and it was these cases which could most benefit from early and aggressive intervention. In the first 12-month period after establishing the DV Unit, the number of DV cases filed increased by approximately 40% over the number filed in 1993. Not only was there a significantly greater number of cases filed, vertical prosecution of DV misdemeanor cases showed an immediate increase in the conviction rate.

Instrumental in the early stages of the DV Unit was the establishment of a DV Court. At the urging of the District Attorney, the Court agreed in July of 1994 to dedicate two judicial officers to hear all misdemeanor DV cases at the pre-trial and sentencing stages, thereby ensuring consistency and statutory compliance in the disposition of the bulk of DV cases which were resolved through plea rather than trial. At this same time, the courts handling arraignments became responsive to the Unit's consistent effort to oppose OR release, set bail and to obtain PC 136.2 protective orders in all misdemeanor DV cases.

Within the first year of the Unit, it became apparent that there was a significant need to provide advocacy to DV victims, with a particular need for bilingual services to victims. In February of 1995, this office applied for and was awarded SAPP grant funding which enabled the DV Unit to hire two full-time victim advocates, at least one of who was bilingual in Spanish.

In 1996, the next logical step occurred in response to the increasing number of felony DV cases being filed. As the Unit evolved, the ability to thoroughly research a suspect's background and history of unreported domestic violence had resulted in more cases being properly identified as felonies. Thus, between 1996 and 1997, a full-time vertical felony prosecutor became assigned to the DV Unit. The Unit now consisted of three full-time attorneys and two full-time victim advocates, under the supervision of the Supervising Deputy District Attorney. on Status of Women collaborate with the Unit on various issues and projects related to domestic violence.

The Unit actively participates in the collaborative function of the San Mateo County Domestic Violence Council. The Legal Process Committee of the DV Council is chaired by the Supervising Deputy District Attorney of the Unit. Other members participate in the Children/Multi-Cultural/Education (CME) and Death Review Committees of the DV Council.

Within the last year there has been a countywide effort launched to address the co-occurrence of domestic violence and child abuse. This is a multi-disciplinary collaborative of health, social services, education and law enforcement agencies. The Unit has actively participated in this group, entitled Violence in Families Initiative Planning (VIP).

The Unit also provides DV training to local law enforcement, community groups, judges, probation officers, dispatchers and medical groups.

The Domestic Violence Unit of the District Attorney's Office is viewed as a leader in the effort to address this problem in San Mateo County, and has been informally recognized for its efforts by both the County Manager and the Board of Supervisors. The Unit will continue to work with any and all agencies that share the goal of violence-free relationships and families.

Goals and Objectives

The ultimate goal is, of course, to reduce and eliminate abuse perpetrated by an individual against a current or former partner. Aggressive prosecution acts to "criminalize" the behavior, so as to dispel the myth that this is a family matter, or is conduct which is acceptable among certain groups or in certain situations. Much like driving under the influence of alcohol cases over the past few decades, as society at large has come to understand that this conduct is a crime which will be punished, it is hoped that this message will have an overall deterrent effect. For the individual batterer, however, punishment is only one part of the equation. Rehabilitation, primarily through batterers' treatment programs, is essential to changing attitudes and behaviors. Also key to this effort is addressing, through counseling and court ordered abstention and chemical testing, the correlation between substance abuse and domestic violence.

Additionally, the needs of the victim, and any children in the relationship, are of paramount importance. It is our goal to be mindful of the concerns of the victim, even when they are in conflict with traditional prosecutorial endeavors. We must balance the prosecutorial duty to ensure the safety of DV victims and their children, while recognizing that prosecution of the batterer is often not desired by the victim. Providing advocacy, particularly that which is bilingual and bicultural, is a key component in attempting to strike that balance.

Results and Benefits Expected

It is anticipated and, in fact, has already been noted that swift, consistent and aggressive vertical prosecution of domestic violence results in a greater number of convicted batters. Once convicted and placed on probation, batterers will receive both education and motivation, through both positive and negative reinforcement, encouraging them to change behaviors that may be of long-standing duration. Many batterers report in counseling that the violent behavior they engage in is simply that which they grew up observing in their own homes, and never really considered it wrong. The overriding benefit expected is that the intergenerational cycle of violence, in which children in violent homes often grow up to be abusers or victims in their adolescent and adult relationships, will be broken.

Collaborative Efforts

The efforts of the DV Unit have been made in collaboration with many other agencies, both public and private. In order to establish the DV Court, the Unit has collaborated with the Superior Court of San Mateo County, the Probation Department, the Sheriff and the Private Defender Program. The Unit collaborates with the two community-based non-profit agencies which provide services to victims of domestic violence, Center for Domestic Violence Prevention and Sor Juana Ines.
